

Dr. Kenneth H. Folks serves as Chief Academic Officer for the Indiana Department of Education (IDOE). In his current role, Dr. Folks supervises the five academic divisions of the IDOE including School Safety, Student Services, Title Grants and Supports, School Improvement, and Special Education. Dr. Folks has 36 years of experience in public schools as a teacher, building level administrator, and central office administrator. He retired as Superintendent of East Allen County Schools in Fort Wayne, Indiana, in 2017.

He holds a Ph.D. in Education Leadership from Purdue University, West Lafayette, Indiana. He was awarded the Norbert Nelson Scholarship for the Outstanding Dissertation of the Year in 2009 from Purdue University, College of Education, for his dissertation on school safety entitled, "School Safety Preparedness: A Qualitative Study of Principals' Perceptions of Using A School Safety Checklist." He has served as a certified Indiana School Safety Specialist since the inception of the Indiana School Safety Specialist Academy in 1999.